Economic Standing Of UK Professors Considered Critical

Dr. Donovan Submits Report To Trustees

The low economie status of its faculty and staff members is the most vital of all the issues facing UK today, President II, L. Donovan told the University's Board of Trustees Tuesday.

"In spite of a number of small increases in salaries the Board has made to our professors and staff during the last decade, the professor today finds himself poorer in terms of purchasing power than he was at the beginning of the Second World War," Dr.

Ford Predicts Congressional Cooperation

tion of President Eisenhower's legislative program, it was predicted Tuesday night by Congressman Gerald R. Ford Jr. (R-Mieh.).

Ford's prediction, made at a "Town Meeting of the Air," program at the Coliseum Tuesday night, was questioned by two Kentucky newspapermen, who expressed the opinion that the President does not speak for his party and will need strong support from the Democrats if Congress is to pass important Billiter, lowerclassman, was elected

Congressman Ford contended that the President will be able to get his proposals through Congress because of his ability to co-operate with Congress in an effective manner. Ford's predictions were made on the basis of what he termed the President's "batting average," where 32 or 44, or 72 per cent, of his proposals were enacted by the 83rd

He then compared the President's "batting average" with that of Harry Truman, who, he said, had only a 42.6 per cent average after a sixyear term in office.

Liets to light. In its study the committee attempted to answer five pertment questions (1) What has stand with respect to other numbers of his profession. (3) How does he stand with respect to other professions and to the large body of skilled workers in business and industry (1) Is he better or worse off than men of science in government and industry, and (5) Are the people of the state financially able to support the University to the extent chasing power?

(I) The effect of inflation on the faculty member. . . The cost-of-living index in 1940 stood at 1003 compared with an average of 190.7 for the year 1952, and the figure continues to rise. The percentage increases in salaries over this 12-year radio, and other such mediums, period are, by rank: Professors 59 per cent; associate professors, 64 per cent, assistant professors, 67 per cent; and instructors, 97 per cent. Only in the rank of instructor has the laculty member's increase in pay rivalled the steady rise in the price level of basic commodities and services, which were approximately 90 per cent higher in 1952 than in 1910. (2) Is the UK faculty member better or worse off than his colleagues in other institutions. . . A recent study was made of 17-state-supported colleges and universities in the South, which included Universities of Alahama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia. Kentneky, Mississippi. North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia, as wellas Florida State and Louisiana State University. Christmas Is Time For Deep Thought students begin thinking of returning home and of the pleasures to which they can look forward over the holidays. To many . . . that is Christmas.

In our rush to leave studies and cares behind, we casily forget the reason for celebrating Christmas. Millions of words have been written on the subject, The Real Meaning of Christmas, yet these words have failed to have much impact on the thinking of this generation.

The world continues to move faster, and we contime to grow more materialistic. It is seldom that we take time to ponder the meanings of things we so readily take for granted. At Christmastime, especially, we fail to grasp the hill significance of the occasion.

There is more to Christmas than the mere exchanging of gilts, the decorating of a tree and the merry-making. .

Had you ever considered attending church services on Christmas day with your family?

Do you think of the less fortunate and strive to make their Christmas a little brighter?

Do you try to reflect the happiness and imselfishness that is associated with Christmas? Do you make Christmas a family observance . . . a time when parents and children alike have reason to feel a closer bond: All this enters into the true spirit of Christmas. In doing these things you'll find vomself having a happier and more lasting Christmas. The idea could even be carried over into everyday living.

Our SGA Deserves Better Cooperation From UK Students

Our student government hody, SGA, deserves much more support from students and faculty than it has received in the past. Admittedly, it makes mistakes, bhunders along in ruts of petty insignificance, and makes far too many "investigations to study the possibility of moves. Even so, there are some extremely capable and willing representatives in SGA who, with the aid of the student body and the faculty, could advance UK several degrees in the direction of progress.

During this semester, SGA had several opportunities to prove its worth, but, without the support of the student body and faculty, could only make slight advances. For instance, when SGA was asked to promote amendment of Section 186 of the Kentucky Constitution, it did everything in its power, Posters were printed, letters were mailed to the various campus organizations, and booths were set up to facilitate receiving absentee ballots. In spite of the publicity, in spite of SGA's elforts, very few students took an active interest in promoting the

The road to a closer bond between SGA and the student body is open. All students, under SGA's constitution, become a member of SGA upon registering at the University. > SGA's doors are open to everyone. It is not an exclusive, restricted organization, acting upon its own whims or upon those of the administration. Its purpose is to seek out rough spots and to legislate accordingly. But it can't do these things efficiently without the aid of the student body. Help it.

Columnist Feels Urge To Examine Copy Of Popular Movie Magazine

By LESLIE MORRIS

Our Christmas tree looked a trifle naked and we were a little dry, so we shoveled snow down to the corner drug store, picked up a gross of tinsel, a dozen eggs for nog-and a copy of Photoplay. Now we swore off the cinemagazines several eons ago, but this rag claims to be the largest selling movie mag on the mainland, and we had a sudden urge to see if the Hollywood pulp-boys had gotten any wiser. But the years have made no difference, and while we sat by the roaring fire, sipped our Xmas spirits and munched egg shells, we felt that scraping sensation which rakes our spine everytime we enter the paradise of the sapheads.

On page five of Photoplay, we are treated to a mifty little column with-gad-earth-shaking revelations: Joan Crawford has dved ber bair to match her favorite gray mink stole, Jeff "Cochise" Chandler's pale blue tux shirts "bring out the color of his eyes like crazy," and Terry Moore is now wearing an ermine patch over her busted eye.

On the following page we were appalled to see hat of Sid Skolsky was still on the joh-this columnist (?) has long been the king of the loopoleague and is mainly interested in the state of attire of movie stars come bed time. His hig secop was his discovery that M. Monroe is a nature lover. This peeping-tom wants us to know, also, that all actresses look sexy to him with rain on their faces. Well, this is nice to know. Further on, sleezy Skolsky acknowledges his keen disappointment with the clever pic, "Roman Holiday," because Greg Peck didn't even make a mild pass at Andrey Hephurn in their bed-room scene. This kid is our number one candidate for a Russky brain-wash.

Then there's a little bit where readers, with sawdust pouring out of their ears, write in their original letters writ by hand; all interested in the various "dolls," "dreamboats," and "gorgeous hunks of men" who roam the Wilshire woods. And as to their movie reviews, do you remember "All The Brothers Were Valiant," which played here a few weeks ago? In one five minute stretch some half-dozen characters are alternately stabled, speared, strangled, and shot, and the whole film strip is a study in maybein—grifesomely removing the entire cast with few exceptions. But Photoplay says, "the promise of a . . . measure of excitement isn't kept . . . few thrills." Well, I suppose the theater manager could have committed fratricide on stage at intermission.

As to the magazine's leatures, there is one entitled, "Too Hot To 1 est," which accuses Ferdy Lamas of shigging Lana in the eye, and salaciously drags Bergman, Hayworth, and company, through the coals-always good for a re-hash. And then there's the photo-section which we've never understood; it presents color pix and the resultant impressions upon the soluble brain of a staff writer. For instance, Alan Ladd's kisser in four-colors reminds bim of "father's day at the zoo," and "lamplights reflected on wet city streets." I dunno, but this sounds like an insult to us.

A closer look at the magazine's journalistic atfempts: Subject-interview with Miss Hepburn. Action-Hepburn cuters the room, "the smog lifts," and she "glides gracefully, proudly, arrogantly," as "trumpets blace" her arrival. The reporter sits 'mesmerized" by her "hypnotie" eyes; her smile is like a "rainbow after a summer shower," and he droofs like a "luck from Hickville . . . training to hear every word. . . shaken and nervous . . . awestruck. . ." Well, this is quite a babe, and we were beginning to feel a fittle shake ourself, so wt pitched the mag into the crackling logs, gulped down our warm egg-nog, and tossed a handful of tinsel at our bare fir.

Tis Christmas time again, and we want to wish all of our patient readers (both of you) a very Merry Xmastide and a prosperous New Year. And while you're out plunking down your cash for people who won't appreciate it anyway, and lining the pockets of guys who think Dec. 25 is a huckster's holiday. Jollow a star to your town's Bowery and help keep a kid who can't help it warm this winter. See you next year.

Solution to the parking problem-Eliminate parking permits, put parking space on a first-come-firstserve basis, and charge admission. The result should be better than a stock car race.

Our Readers Speak: Concerning Intolerance

Concerning one Don M. Topping's letter to Our Readers Speak in last week's issue, may I simply state this. I am amazed that anyone would show the lack of integrity and abundance of malicious racial prejudice as did this Mr. Topping. I had to read the letter three times before I could convince myself that anyone could stoop so incredibly low.

If even one Negro Temple U, player heard such a comment as "Jungle Bonny," "Chocolate Drop," or "Coon," the whole team is due an apology. Do we have any more right to throw eaustic remarks at a Negro than we do our teachers or friends? Certainly not! It is stupid and inifounded, as is any

These Negro players played on the floor of the Memorial Coliseum, a place of dedication to Kentucky war dead. I rather imagine not all those the Coliseum is dedicated to are white. After teeing a display such as on Nov. 5th, I am somewhat ashamed to say I am a UK student.

Mr. Topping should realize that Negroes are as human as you and I. They may have their minor differences but they enjoy life the same, laugh and cry the same, and can be furt just as deeply as you and I. Think it over.

> Sineerely, David P. Slack

relief he believes was evident at the UR-Temple going on, I do not believe that we should be kept basketball game. He did not condone the comments, such as "Jungle Binning" and "Chocolate Drop," as Mr. Slack asserted.)

Concerning Parking

The editorial which you have just published on the parking situation on the University eampus may verily for many the low point to which our campus journalists have fallen. You say at the end of the editorial that the space devoted to the problem and the investigation by the committee of the faculty was wasted. Your meaning is clear. Since the decision of the committee was not that of the Kernel, the space was wasted. The fact that these articles appeared in the news sections of the Kernel makes no difference to you—their purpose was not to enlighten, but to propagaudize, and when the decision went against you, you immediately regret bringing our attention to it at all.

As I understand it, the faculty committee did not deny the existence of a problem. It did deny that the solutions presented were solutions at all. Perthe in restricted parking suggested by the Kernel. are. During class hours, I believe the concern of invmisinterpreted the direction of Mr. Topping's let-classes—and when classes are finished, then we can they can take once they do get in the Assembly. ter. Through sarcasm Mr. Topping attempted to each relax in the extracurricular activity of our denomice the discrimination and racial prehadice choice and evice collector. But while classes are waiting by faculty members circling from one lot to another, and linally parking over by the dairy building just because you and I got there first. One faculty member delived in this manner consumes the time of 20 to 50 students.

Your notion that they all get here at 7:30 and thus are set for the day is probably true in a few instances. Do they not even leave for hmeh?

Sure, Id like a place to park. But if I'm late, that's piv concern. If a professor's late, it's the concern of the entire class

Suggestion To SGA

Dear Editor

Well, SGA elections are over. A week of elfort and the new representatives are in for a year.

I'd like to suggest that in the luture all candidates be appropried and platforms presented a minimum of two weeks before the election. In this way we could use the Kernel to ask candidates their positions on issues, hear issues discussed more individually, and know a fittle bit more about what the haps they are right. Let me state my opposition to candidates think about issues, and just who they Incidentally, it might make the candidates think (Editor's Nete: It is evident that Mr. Slack has self and indeed, all of us, should be with the a little bit ahead of time about definite actions

Here Is A Story Of Loving Faith For All Humanity

By RONNIE BUTLER

(Sometimes, it is hard to remember the meaning of concepts such as faith and hope, especially in a world that has come to know little more than armament races and battlefields. With the added threat of destruction by atoraic energy, the dream of relate Christmases grows dimmer and disnmer.

This is a hard world for people who allow it to be so. Many men have turned to one of two mistaken means of consolation to forget their worner and frustrations. Either they have taken the shell of religion, dogma and ritual, or have turned to an inpersonal science. Both, paradoxically, are perfectly logical.)

This is the story of a child.

He is small, very small, so he has not yet learned the synicism and hypocrisy of the adult world. He lives for the moment, rejoicing or sorrowing as the occasion fits, but through all these things he has

He doesn't know what faith is-he couldn't possibly grasp the complicated, vague meaning adults give the word, but he still has it. In the dark, he is not afraid, as other children often are, because of things their parcuts have told them-he has faith.

To him, the dark is a time when the lights from the sky shine better than ever, when you can hear the least little noise in the street, and when the shadows in his room bring out a brand new world of shapeless

If he hurts himself, he cries for a moment, but only for a moment. A loving father and mother have taught him that no harm will ever come to him, and, having received this love, there is no fear because of a cut finger. Just faith that all will be well.

Being a child, he has no concept of freedom or democracy, but he has faith. His parents shower him with gentle instice-the kind that keeps him from harm, and he has come to believe, quite unconscionsly, that all men in all nations must be like his parents. Through the things he has come to feel in his child's heart, he has faith, and there is nothing stronger than that particular kind of faith.

If you asked him to tell you what God is he wouldn't have the least idea. He might look up at you, smile, and then point up, or down, or anywhere, and, still smiling, say "God," and then busy himself with other matters.

But he knows, really, because, being a child, and still trailing those clouds of glory, he is much, much closer to Him than many a fully conscious adult And all this comes through the simplest thing in the world, his faith.

Each day, to him, is a testing ground for his faith. He sees a cloud drift across the blue sky, and he has faith in the beauty of that cloud. He sees a bird fly, and he has faith in the grace and dignity of the creature's skill. He finds a worm as he pushes his stubby, chursy fingers through the damp earth he has upturued, and he has laith in the wonder of life, assured that the worm is a wonderful thing indeed.

Take him to the seashore on a warm, bright afternoon, and watch him closely. To him, the water is friendly, mysterious, a powerful thing, almost alive, and the child has faith in the wonder and magmilicance of the sea.

But—this is a story.

Summer has gone, and the last traces of fall have been covered by snow. The child, sleepy-eyed, content nuder the warmth of the blanket covering him, listens from afar as his father spins tales of Saint Nick and snow and reindeer and presents and sugar phuns and-all such things.

These things run through his little mind which is open to everything with which it comes in contact, and he has faith that these things are true, just as the beauty of the cloud, the grace of the bird, the wonder of the wriggling worm, and the appeal of the sea are true.

Having faith, he believes, with no proof but with all his heart that these things are as they have been described to him. He laughs and, in a wonderful little way, asks his mother and father if he's been good enough for Saint Nick to visit him.

His parents look down at him, and, because they are wonderful parents, stare at him sternly for a moment, until his face serews up a noteb, almost ready to cry, and then laugh with him, assuring him that he is the hest little hoy in the world!

But, the really wonderful part of the story lies not in the dreams of fleet reindeer and a merry old gent with presents for those of faith and kindness. Nor does it lie with the thrill of watching his face as he listens to the icycles turn into jungling bells or hears the sound of snow sliding from the roof as Saint Nick comes down a chinney ladered with gifts and laughter.

It lies in the story of faith, love, understanding, goodness, and kindness and all the other things that make Christmas. It lies in tenderness and gentleness, in cahn, soothing words, of loving care, and in a desire for happiness-real, solid happiness.

It is a story for all men, of all nations, of all times, regardless of who they are or what they are. It is a story of faith.

Merry Christmas

Is everyone else having trouble with homecoming elections this year

At Eastern Illinois State College name calling, hair tearing, and long distance phone calls preceded the election of Marilyn Harris as Homeeoming queen.

There was no stuffing of the ballot boxes. It wasn't that simple. The football players had merely voted before leaving for their game in Michigan. This was okay until someone remembered that under the rules of the student poll, voting was permitted only between the hours of 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on election day. This meant the team had cast their votes before the polls were legally open.

After much discussion, election officials phoned the team in Michigan, asking them to vote over again. Then they subtracted the tcam votes from the total to make

The University livestock and neats judging teams were honored it the annual Block and Bridle recognition banquet in the Blue Grass Room of the Student Union, Thursday evening, Dec. 10

Guest speaker at the banquet was Prof. D. J. Kays, retired head of the mimal hu bandry decariment. Ohio State University. Prof. Kays told the agriculture students that there s a great need for a balance between research, teaching, and exension service.

"We are making a mistake if we stress research to the point where we neglect teaching," he said. He also told Block and Bridle members that breeding good animals is an art as well as a science.

The meats judging team, coached by Dr. James Kemp, took third place this year at the American Royal Show in Kansas City and sixth place in the International Exposition in Chlcago. A couple of football notes to round out 1953. The UK scouting staff has let the brother of quarterback Bob Hardy get away Brother Bill, a 210 pound tackle from Paduenh Tilghman has signed a grant-in-aid with Vanderbilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Adkins have announced the birth of a son at Good Samaritan Hospital. The event took place last Saturday. He has been names Tom Jr. and has all the makings of a fine linehacker and center like his pappy. How about it Tom?

The showing of the reserve bench in the 101-69 win over highly rated Wake Forest Monday night should highly clate Coaches Rupp and Laneaster. Many observers wonder how long it Tom Adkins will be before Linville Puekett, flashy guard from Clark County will break into the starting lineup? Late in the second quarter when UK was leading only 50-46, one of the Wake Forest seribes at the press table was overheard to remark, "If we had only one good sub!" It appeared at the end of the game that they needed quite a few more than one.

Paul Knapp, former Kernel feature writer who is stationed in Landsburg, Germany, has sent us a clipping from the Stars and Stripes, Armed Forces paper.

John Netoskie, former UK gridder, has been named to the All-Star Germany-Austria Sports Conference team. The former Kentnekian played with the Rhine-Main Rockets.
